

SOAKING IN THE SIGHTS

Formerly a porch, this bathroom takes advantage of a grand brick arch to relish the view.

WHY WE LOVE IT...

- 1 Picture Window
 One step into this guest bath, and you may never want to leave. A soaking tub strategically placed by the wall-sized window means long baths with unobstructed views—the epitome of relaxation.
- 2 Double Vanities
 No guest bath is complete without double vanities. Placed on opposite walls, they create a pleasing symmetry that complements the window focal point.
- 3 Industrial Finishes
 With exposed brick walls, this bathroom was a natural candidate for more modern, streamlined finishes. Urban-inspired lighting and sleek chrome faucets maintain the industrial style.
- 4 Made for Guests
 The end result of the project is a bathroom that feels more like a retreat at a resort. What better way to literally, and figuratively, bathe guests in luxury?

IN ITS PAST LIFE, THIS SPACE WAS A PORCH that offered exquisite views of the wooded landscape—a spot to relax and rejuvenate. So what better place to create a bathroom with the same intentions? Architects Tom Adams and Adam Gerndt of Adams-Gerndt Design Group knew right away that the expansive brick arch of the original porch was too beautiful to do away with, so they chose to work with it. The arch-turned-picture-window ultimately became the inspiration for the sleek, industrial design of the entire space.

resources: architects: TOM ADAMS AND ADAM GERNDT OF ADAMS GERNDT DESIGN GROUP 205.939.1113 • adams-gerndt.com cabinets: custom countertops: TRITON STONE 205.592.0202 • triton-stone.com tile: TRITON STONE faucets and fixtures: KOHLER kohler.com VW GALLERIE 205.324.9521 • vwsupply.com lighting: VISUAL COMFORT & CO. visualcomfort.com cabinet hardware: BRANDINO BRASS 205.978.8900 • brandinobrass.com tub: CHEVIOT PRODUCTS cheviotproducts.com

